About Looe and Bedfordshire

Looe is Cornwall's second largest fishing port, made up of the bustling quay of East Looe and the quieter West Looe, connected by a seven arched 19th century bridge over the river, and you can also catch a river taxi to travel between the two. East Looe has narrow cobbled streets and plenty of tourist shops, whilst West Looe has a lovely outlook across the harbour. The sandy Looe Beach adjoins the pier and is very popular with families because of its safe shallow swimming and vast expanse of sand. Explore the nearby Bodmin Moor and Tamar Valley to see the former mining landscape, which has World Heritage status. This area of Cornwall has inspired writers, such as Daphne du Maurier, and much of Bodmin Moor has inspired legends linked with King Arthur. There is much to explore in this beautiful part of Cornwall.
